Superstitions and Polite Pilfering. The fall season will be an unusual one socially, as there are to be so many weddings. Dame Rumor has it that between now and Thanksgiving day there will be about twenty marriages among the young people well known in society. Several brides will be taken to other cities and a few will come here, but the majority will be couples who have found their affinity within the city limits. And now that there are to be so many nuptials, the brides must not forget any of the little ceremonies which will insure their happiness, especially in the matter of personal adornment, and for this it is positively necessary for each to wear

Something old and something new, Something borrowed and something blue, and if the truth were known, almost every bride does do it. For a sure sign that one will never be brought to want, a narrow white ribon should be tied around the left ankle before any of the bridal finery is put on, and she must always dress her feet first. Many grandmothers have other signs, some queer, and nearly all of them without any reason why they are so, and some bride's would rather not be married than to risk the ceremony without the old, new, borrowed and blue articles.

Some persons, who would swear upon a witness stand that they had never stolen, have really done so, and yet this very act, committed by them, they have thought very cute indeed at the time, and have even told their friends or chance acquaintances just what they had done. Especially referred to is the appropriation of photographs, german favors, souvenirs, or any small article which some callers may take a fancy to. For instance, a young lady calls on snother, and in looking through the album she sees the picture of a young gentleman, and thinks she would like to have it. She determines to have it, and either when making that call, or a subsequent one, she intentionally and premeditatedly takes it. Or a young woman goes to a german, some figure she is not invited to dance leaves her without the accompanying favor. When she goes to the table to get a favor for some following figure she quietly appropriates one of the favors she has missed and makes her set to take home complete, so when she shows her favors the viewer will believe she danced every figure. more numerous and spacious, as well as easy to get to, small articles may easily be taken.

Now this is nothing more than polite pilfering, and in the dictionary definition is plain steal.

Probably, of all articles taken photographs rank first, and in many cases cause considerable appropriate to the person from whom they are taken. The case of the young lady taking the german favor was not known to have ever happened but once in this city, and it was some years ago, and she probably never did it again, or anything like it. Persons who take things in this way generally think they have done something very smart, relate the occurrence with great gusto, and laugh immoderately; but if they knew what their act and hilarity make some people think of them they would not be inclined to think so highly of themselves.

CHURCHES AND PASTORS.

The New Building to Be Used by the Seventh Presbyterians.

The new Seventh Presbyterian Church will be dedicated to-day. It is a handsome and commodius structure, located alongside the old building on the northwest corner of Elm and Cedar streets. It is the accomplishment of an organization which began its religious work at a Sunday-school meeting in a bracksmith's shop, less than twenty-five years ago. The edifice is of frame. Regarding this fact, the pastor, Rev. R. V. Hunter, says: "A great many people will imagine, when they hear that the church is of frame, that it does not amount too much, but that is a mistaken idea. I know that for my own part, I prefer frame to brick every time. Of course, if I had all the money that I wanted I would have a stone church, but if that can not be secured a frame church is more desirable." The building is a substantial one, having a solid foundation. The main room is forty by sixty feet, with a large alcove in the rear, in which are the pulpit and place for the choir. There is a gallery across the entire front, being sixty feet in length and thirteen to breadth. On the side of the room opposite the pulpit is a lecture-room capable of seating from 150 to 160 people. It is cut off from the main room by large sliding doors, which extend across the entire front, and can be opened at any time, throwing the entire room into one and furnishing a very large auditorium. The arrangement of the building is first-class, and shows the practical judgment of a pastor like Mr. Hunter. The seating capacity is 800, which can be increased to a thousand if necessary. Mrs. Phelps, of Xenia, O., is the guest of Mrs. F.

A. Norvell... Miss Fannie Orland has returned from of the church. Up stairs, over the lecture-room, that it can be thrown into one or readily subdivided into a number of apartments. For the present a portion of the Sunday-school will meet in the old church, which is still standing, and which has a seating capacity of 400 or 500.

About four years ago the old church was supplied with new seats purchased at Richmond. These will be placed in the gallery and lecture-room of the new church, and the main auditorium is to be supplied with folding opera chairs.

The principal room is well lighted by a large chandelier in the center, with double brackets around the sides. Natural gas will be used both for lighting and heating, a steam heating apparatus having been put in. The windows are a striking feature of the church, bandsome cathedral glass being used all the way through. There are two large memorial windows-one on the east side in memory of Rev. Charles Raymond, the first paster of the church, and one on the west side, completed by the deacons and trustees, in bonor of Dr. J. M. McLean, chairman of the building committee, who died while the church was being erected. The Society of Christian Endeavor has put in five windows on the south side. The building, taken as a whole, is plain, neat and comfortable. Its accoustic properties are excellent, and it has double floors, the top floor being of hard yellow pine, oiled. The aisles and pulpit platform are carpeted with ingrain arpet of Drussels nhish. The building has a self-supporting roof and tower. There are no columns under the gallery, which is awang to girdles by means of heavy iron rods. An elaborate programme has been prepared for the dedicatory exercises to-day. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Haines, of the Second Prestyterian Church, and there will be special musical features. In the evening there will be addresses by a number of visiting pastors and Harvest Home Festival. The tenth annual harvest home festival at the First Baptist Church will be held this afternoon, at 2:15. In addition to the members of the church and Sunday-school, assistance will be given by Rev. Henry Day, Rev. Winfield Scott, D. D., and Rev. J. Albert Rondtbaler. An excellent musical programme has been arranged, and there will be recitations and responsive readings. These festivals are among the most beautiful services celebrated in this church, and the harvest home decorations are very elaborate.

Religious Notes. The Rev. L. H. Jameson will preach at Plymouth Rev. J. E. Gilbert has been transferred to the Cleveland has been transferred from the Philadelphia Conference to this conference, and will be stationed at Meridian street, Indianapolis. Rev. D. R. Lucas will preach a sermon appropriate to the anniversary of the birth of Alexander Camp-bell, at the Central Christian Church this evening. There will be a special choral service and sermon for the "King's Daughters" at Grace Cathedral, corner of St. Joe and Pennsylvania streets, this morning. The offerings at St. Paul's Church to-morrow morning will be sent to Rev. Jesse R. Bicknell, at Jacksonville, Fla., who was at one time assistant minister of the church, and is now stricken down with yellow fever in that city. Divided in Opinion. The insanity commission that has been strugging along for a week attempting to declare Miss Sadis Bruce of unsound mind held another session yesterday, but did not reach a conclusion. The members of the commission were divided in their opinions as to what action should be taken. The physicians asked to be released and that new experts be appointed, but their re-quest was not granted. Miss Bruce was present with her attorney, and as she desired more time to procure witnesses who will testify that she is
